Product Description

35CrMo steel is a Chinese alloy steel for engineering purpose, it has high durability and creep strength at high temperature, and low temperature impact toughness is good. The working temperature is up to 500 °C, the low temperature can be -100 °C, and has high static strength and high fatigue strength, good hardenability, no tendency to overheat, small quenching deformation, and moderate machinability. However, this material has a first type of temper brittleness, and the weldability is not good. It needs to be preheated to 150-400 °C before welding, and heat treatment is needed after welding to eliminate stress. Generally used after quenching and tempering treatment.
