Product Description

410 420 430 Stainless Steel Coils SS Coils 2mm 3mm Thickness 1220mm 1250mm Width ASTM SUS

Product Description

410 stainless steel is a general-purpose martensitic material containing at least 11.5% chromium and a generally elevated carbon content compared with many other stainless steels. This makes a moderately machinable/formable stainless steel of relatively low cost, because of the reduced use of higher-value alloying agents. This configuration provides good corrosion resistance in non-aggressive conditions such as non-acid water and wet air exposure. The corrosion resistance of 410 stainless steels can be enhanced by hardening, tempering, and polishing. The grade is generally used for applications demanding moderate corrosion resistance, moderate heat tolerance, and high strength. This article will discuss what 410 stainless steel is, its uses, composition, and properties.
