Product Description

Galvanized Steel Wire GI Cable Gauge 22 23 Size Zinc Coated Wire 0.7-4mm Diameter

Product Description

Galvanized wire is a type of steel wire coated with a layer of zinc (Zn) to protect against corrosion, produced through the galvanization process. In this process, the wire is bonded with a thin layer of zinc and a zinc-iron coating. This method increases the wire's resistance to corrosion and rust, offering enhanced protection against environmental elements such as rain and humidity.

Galvanized wire is used as a building material in various constructions such as doors, windows, fences, security systems, and metal structures. It is also utilized in diverse industries, including automotive, construction, and maritime. The primary advantage of using galvanized wire is its high resistance to corrosion and rust due to its zinc coating, making it highly durable. Additionally, galvanized wire is favored in various constructions for its lightweight and flexibility.
